From Classics to Grilled Cheese — and Delis to Treasure

In Dallas, sandwiches are a truly versatile food. You can eat them for breakfast, lunch, or dinner, and the customizable options are endless. From heroes and Cubans to Happy Hippies and grilled cheese, we've rounded up Dallas' 10 Best Sandwich Shops.

Eatzi's Market & Bakery

3403 Oak Lawn Avenue, 5600 W. Lovers Lane, & 6025 Royal Lane, Suite 208

A European-style market, Eatzi's puts together some of the best sandwiches. Here, you build your own. They start with bread: baguette, cranberry orange, hoagie roll, sourdough, and sprouted wheat are some of the options. Then you pick your spread, meat or veggies, cheese, and toppings.

It's fun to just explore the market and try some new things. There's all sorts of bread to take home, wines, pastries, and a cafe that sells espresso drinks. It's truly a wonderland for foodies and a great place to grab a sandwich.
